

The Voice of the Editor-in-Chief

Dear Colleagues,

The end of the year makes us reflect on all aspects of everyday life and review accomplishments and lessons learned. First, I would like to thank you for the active participation in creating "Clinical Diabetology" by submitting many interesting papers. Thanks to your efforts, our journal is indexed in the Scopus database and currently also in the Web of Science, which is an important starting point for its further development. Moreover, "Clinical Diabetology" includes more and more original and review articles sent by foreign authors, which significantly broadens our view on diabetes care and improves the rank of our journal.

Offering you the last issue of "Clinical Diabetology" in 2018, I would like to draw your attention to an article referring to diabetes care for children and adolescents in Poland. The authors point to significant differences in the frequency, causes and duration of hospitalization of children with diabetes in different regions of Poland, which implies the need to ensure uniform access to specialist medical care as well as to increase public awareness about diabetes symptoms in order to avoid hospitalization related with ketoacidosis in patients with newly diagnosed type 1 diabetes. Moreover, it is worth paying attention to the case report discussing iatrogenic hypoglycemia, which significantly widens the standard perception of this phenomenon, as well as an article about new developments in the pharmaceutical industry presenting new rapid-acting insulin analog.

I wish you a happy New Year 2019 and encourage you for further cooperation in creating "Clinical Diabetology"
