

Supplementary material

Iwańczyk S, Skorupski WJ, Kępski S, et al. Thromboembolic or atherosclerotic? Optical coherence tomography in determining the cause of myocardial infarction with ST-segment elevation. Kardiol Pol. 2020; 78: 1045-1046. doi:10.33963/KP.15499

Please note that the journal is not responsible for the scientific accuracy or functionality of any supplementary material submitted by the authors. Any queries (except missing content) should be directed to the corresponding author of the article.

Figure S1. Transesophageal echocardiographic view showing the presence of atrial septal defect (ASD) type sinus venosus

Figure S2. Final OCT cross sections of mid and distal segment of RCA after 12-months follow-up

